PUNSHON'S NEWLY INVEYTED PATENT COTTON Gunpowder—American Patent for sale.—This gunpowder is superior to ordinary black gunpowder in every way; it is safer, stronger, cheaper and smokeless. Its force is so great that it is calculated no iron-clad ship could be built-that would withstand the shock of balls driven by cotton gunpowder. Weight for weight it will drive a builte with double the velocity of black gunpowder. Its advantages for mining purposes are also very great. It is stronger and safer than dynamite or litho-fracture and other compounds of nitro-glycerine. It has been twice tried before a commission appointed by the English government and once before a commissioner from the Austrian government. In each case the inventor showed its superior force over gunpowder. It was also tried before the English public at Wimbledon, where its marked superiority over ordinary gunpowder was fully proved. (See English Times newspaper of 16th April, 1872, and other journals of that date.) The inventor and patentee, Mr. Robert Punshon, of No. 4 Queen square, Westminster, England, is willing to sell the United States patent for cash, or he will join a company to work the invention in the United States, as he wishes to retain an interest in the American works, the same as he has with the present European Company, who are to retain an Interest in the American works, the same as he has with the present European Company, who are building large works in Eugland.
